Minimize Chat bot window Loading Chatbot New Message English Nederlands logout @MaggieMoonlight In so much that I am aware, the 8620 model does continue to support the Scan to Email (not from Apps). Assuming the printer is on the network, the setup be available (plus easier to configure and manage) in the Embedded Web Server (EWS). Following are some examples (actually pulled from a related thread). The examples are from a different printer; the setup may be enough the same that the examples are helpful. Begin...Commentary and ExamplesThe following might be helpful if your printer provides the "Scan to Email" setup in the Embedded Web Server (EWS). Once you have the setup in place, you can go back and edit the Profile (if desired / necessary). Notes Even if your Scan to Email setup is available in EWS, it may look different from the examples included in this post. The example email was set up with two-step verification OFF and "allow insecure apps" ON. If you do not want to risk your main email account, consider creating a separate email to be used with this feature. You can always "forward" the emails along to another account. Open your favorite browser > type / enter Printer IP address into URL / Address bartab ScanTopic Scan to Email > Scan to Email SetupExample Note: The smtp and port information is from gmail. The email address and other "names" have been edited to protect the original information. EWS_8740_Scan-to-Email_Setup_3 Example - Edit Profile
